

May 2016 Sightings Report

The month started with cool periods over the first 3 weeks, with slow moving cold fronts bringing showers and even some snow pellets mixed in on the 15th. Then the last 10 days turned warmer, bringing some bursts of migrants and a taste of summer. The first 80° day was on the 12th, about two weeks late, but then 91° on the 28th was about three weeks early for that level. Temperatures averaged 58.5 °F, 1.5° above normal. There were no records set. Rainfall totaled 2.93", 0.06" above average, but 1.48" of that fell on the 29th and most of the month was relatively dry. There were way too many days with winds from northerly points for most or all of each day. Migration was again "clumpy", with some good times and high counts if one visited the right spot at the right time.

Late waterfowl were few, in relatively low numbers, and departed at normal dates. Again, this applied also to the loons, grebes, and waders. All the late puddle ducks were again from the NMWMA (Northern Montezuma Wildlife Management Area). There were good counts of Long-tailed Duck and Red-breasted Merganser on Lake Ontario and Bufflehead from the Conesus Inlet WMA (noted by observers looking for the Gray Kingbird). No Brants were reported from our region.

Hawk flights for the month were interesting; pretty good in the first few days, then weak for most of the month, with positive jumps on the 13th, 25th, and 27th. Broad-winged Hawks were better this year, Bald Eagle rose to a new record just past month's end, and Peregrine Falcon reached a record high. On the 25th, Mississippi Kite and 2 Swainson's Hawks were added for the season. Away from the hawk watch, there were 2 Black Vulture reports. Northern Goshawk remained scarce for the season, but Red-shouldered Hawk reports were up a bit.

Sandhill Cranes were reported at their usual sites, but with no reports of juvenile birds with adults. At Braddock Bay, either the numbers passing were way down this year or reporting them was not a priority.

Shorebird habitat was again very poor through the month and over the whole region. Numbers for all species were pathetically low with only a couple of weak exceptions. Even in neighboring regions, the story was similar. Still, there are always highlights. On the 27th, the region's 3rd spring Piping Plover passed Brad Carlson at Hamlin Beach State Park. Willet and Whimbrel were reported. A lone Upland Sandpiper passed Braddock Bay, but no others were found in the region. Less common Stilt Sandpiper, White-rumped Sandpiper, and Long-billed Dowitcher were recorded, but no Wilson's Phalarope. Least and Semipalmated Sandpipers were late in arriving and few in number. Numbers for gulls and terns were also poor. Highlights included an adult Little Gull. Some Iceland and Lesser Black-backed Gulls still around, and there was a pretty good count of 34 Black Terns at Van Dyne Spoor in the NMWMA.

Among some of the species we have been watching, there were no reports for Eurasian Collared-Dove or Monk Parakeet. A count of 142 Common Nighthawks in Hamlin was good, but counts at other regular areas along the lakeshore were low. Eastern Whip-poor-will was reported until the 19th, but numbers were poor this spring. Fish Crow was reported continuously from the general Charlotte/Ontario Beach area but again at several more distant sites.

We recorded all of the expected passerine species except for Kentucky Warbler and Connecticut Warbler (rumored, but no reports posted), both not seen every year here. As noted earlier, observers at the right places and times found reasonably good variety and/or numbers. You can find some of these captured in maxima in the Noteworthy Records table. However, generally numbers were low. The Braddock Bay Bird Observatory (BBBO) banding station total was the lowest for the past five years. Most warbler banding totals were from about average to half or less of other totals in this period. Black-throated Blue Warbler was interesting in jumping up a bit. Orange-crowned Warbler dropped from last year's amazing 18 banded to a more normal one banded. It is interesting to ponder on causes; maybe the persistent storms between us and the Gulf? It was also interesting that there were few instances of first spring arrivals being banded birds, in contrast with many in most years. Passerine rarities included: Gray Kingbird at Conesus Lake Inlet WMA, White-eyed Vireo, Sedge Wren, Worm-eating Warbler, Prothonotary Warbler, Yellow-throated Warbler, Harris's Sparrow at a feeder in the Town of Kendall, a Gambel's White-crowned Sparrow at the Kendall site, Dickcissel passing Hamlin Beach SP, and a Summer Tanager banded at BBBO and remaining for a couple of days. Again, after a weak winter showing, winter finches were represented only by a few Pine Siskins.

For those interested in more details, you can go to the table of Noteworthy Records on the RBA website, then dig deeper in the banding tally for the spring season on the BBBO website or the hawk watch data at the hawkcount site. The table and these notes are summaries of the month's data, which included over 64,000 eBird records, 115 Geneseebirds posts other than those entered in eBird, the banding and hawk watch tallies, and other records submitted to the records committee.

Please send your records by the 5th of the month to Lynn Bergmeyer, 187 Longridge Avenue, Rochester NY 14616.
